Coroner Holds Thomas J. Sharkey in $10,000 Bail.

New York, Sept. 22.-The inquiry into the denth of the late Nicholas Fish, banker, clubenan and son of Hamilton Fish, who was Secretary of State in President Grant's administration, was held to-day before Cor-

Ore Jackson.

Coroner's Physician O'Hanlon, who performed the autopsy on the body of Mr. Pish, testified that, in the absence of a fall or blow, such as Mr. Fish is said to have received, death would not have resulted from the aliments the autopsy indicated Mr. Fish was suffering from.

Policeman Trojan, who arrested Thomas J. Sharkey said the latter admitted having struck Fish.

The Counter's jury found that Nicholas Fish's death was due to a fall caused by a blow struck by Thomas J. Sharkey. Sharkey was held in 10,000 ball for the action of the Grand Jury.

HISTORY OF SOCIAL WAR BETWEEN MRS. STUYVESANT FISH AND MRS. GOELET

Newport Correspondence New York American. So many curiously conflicting reports of plexed to decide which invitation to the social war now raging between Mrs. | cept, for to accept the invitation of the social war now raging between Mrs. Stuyvesaut Fish and Mrs. Ogden Goelet have reached the public that I have taken the trouble to ascertain the exact facts from the chief actors in this social tragedy. Let me at once correct the impression that the hostilities began with a tilt between Madame Fish and His Imperial Highness-this is not so. The fact is that offended Baron Greaves, first secretary and chief-of-suite of the Grand Duke. The Baron resented her joke so strongly that Pish, in turn, lost her temper and Baron Greaves from her dinner invita-

I was told to-night at first hand just what was said at this little contretemps on board ommodore Gerry's yacht; Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish: "Ha! Baron Greaves, I know the secret of the Grand Duke's visit to Newport."

The Baron Greaves (smiling): "You are ery clever, madame; I did not know there

Mrs. Pish: "Why, of course; he is here o marry Miss Goelet."

Baron Greaves: "No, madame, please do not say such a pardon me stund thing. You must know that His Highness cannot marry one not of royal blood." Mrs. Fish: "But you know she is one of our greatest catches?"

Baron Greaves: "Madame, I must insist that you do not repeat this in my pres-

Mrs. Fish: "Oh, nonsense, Baron Greaves you know it as well as I do-be's here to catch a rich girl. You know he is a very sipated young man, and he must manage somehow to pay his debts." At this point the Baron Greaves ares ut bowing and moved to another part without bowl of the yacht.

Now is Mrs Fish had let the matter drop when the Baron Greaves abruptly termi-nated the conversation I am of the opinion that we should have heard no more of the episode. But the more Mrs. Fish thought the matter over, the more she resented the Baron's indignation. So, early in the week, when she came to make out her list of invitations for her grand dinner of last Sunday night, which was to be the farewell and closing entertainment at her villa, the Crossways, Mrs. Fish concluded to administer a sharp rebuke to the hot-tem-pered aide-de-camp of the Grand Duke. She did not send him an invitation to

The next day the Grand Duke Boris opened his invitation and tossed it to his secretary, the Bar ... and said: "Of course we nost go-delightful wom-an, Mrs. Fish."

Baron Greaves then made known to his Imperial Highness that he the Baron, had been omitted from the list of guests. Press-ing him for an explanation, the Baron reluctantly repeated to Boris the conversa-tion I have already given.

Furiously indignant at the slight which had been put upon his aide-de-camp, the Grand Duke at once took up the insult as his own, and forthwith laid all the facts before Mrs Ogden Goelet, pointing out that he had been accused of seeking the hand of her daughter as a dissolute fortune hunter. Mrs. Goelet, I am told, laughed at the matter as a bit of Mrs. Fish's characteristic humor. The Grand Duke, however, de-clined to take this view of the matter and begged Mrs. Goelet to take some action which should vindicate him and make it plain to the fashionable world of Newport rand in Newport. Then it was that Mrs. Ogden Goelet rushed out the invitations to her impromp-tu dinner party, which was carefully timed to clash with the very day and hour of Mrs. Fish's farewell dinner.

And now I am about to tell for the first that Mrs. Goelet, at least, did not indorse

Mrs. Fish's view of the Grand Duke's ertime the most interesting and curious de-velopment of this warfare of social leaders. Mrs. Fish was dumfounded when she instantly that hostilities had begun. Those obliged to g

RURAL FREE DELIVERY SERVICE GROWING FAST.

Estimated That $12,000,000 Will Be Needed Next Year for Maintenance and Extensions.

Washington, Sept. 22.-Postmaster General Payne will probably ask an appropriation of $12,000,000 for the rural free delivery service for the fiscal year ending in 1904. The amount granted by Congress for the present year, which will end June 30, 1803, is $7.300,000. Last year the appropriation was $5.300,000 and the year before $1.750,000.

These figures illustrate more emphatically than anything else the development of popularity and success of this great branch of the postal service. New routes are being established more rapidly than ever before and it is now estimated that, by July L 1903, 14,000 routes will be in operation in the 1900, 14,000 routes will be in operation in the United States.

It is estimated that, for the fiscal year ending June 20, 1904, 28,000,000 will be needed for maintenance of the service and $1,000,000 for its extension, and the officials of the department believe that by the end of that year 25,000 rural free delivery routes will have been established.

The fact that the postal deficiency for the past year will be less than $1,000,000 is urged as sufficient argument against the expensiveness of the rural free delivery service. While that service is being developed at a phenomenal rate, the department is becoming more nearly self-supporting.

It is the confident expectation that eventually the rural free delivery service will be on an even keel, the increased receipts from the routes especially meeting the expenditures.

PROHIBITION WORK IN THE SOUTH. Both Races and All Clauses Profit Wonderfully by Local Option. REPUBLIC SPECIAL

Washington, Sept. 22-"Prohibition has been a boon to the negroes of the South and hus done much for the comfort and welfare of the white population," said J. S. "Men who were in rags in the days of the saloon are now prosperous. There is less disorder and crime, and counties, which are now iree of saloons, could not be persuaded to license the liquor traffic. In Mississippi prohibition is in no sense a party issue. Men of all political faiths advocate it and keep it above party divisions."

VACCINATION FOR BLACKLEG. Bureau of Animal Industry Trying to Make General Use of Antitoxin.

Washington, Sept. 22.-One of the most interesting and important undertakings of the Bureau of Animal Industry is the prethe Bureau of Anima Industry is the pre-vention of "blackler" in cattle by vaccina-tion. Doctor D. E. Salmon, chief of the bu-reau, and others have prepared a plan for the general and effective use of the anti-toxin. Several agents of the bureau in dif-ferent parts of the country have taken care-ful note of the effect of bovine vaccination and have made interesting and convincing reports.

and have made interesting and convincing reports.

The experts say sudden changes in the cow cuisine induce the disease. Too much to eat and too little exercise are the principal causes. The disease is common in nearly all parts of the world, and occurs at all times of the year. The general symptoms are a high fever, loss of appetite and depression, quick respiration and suspended rumination.

Mr. Lebr sat at the dinner table wearing a crown made of cardboard and decorated with timfoli. He carried a ecepter and behaved as a monarch might be expected to in a comic opera. Mrs. Pish paid Mr. Lehr all the honors due to a reigning Emperor. Before the soup was ser ed Mr. Lehr fixed his crown straight on his head, stiffened his back and exclaimed in imperial tones; "I must insist that the soup be served to me first, Mrs. Pish."

Mr. Lehr played upon the same idea with variations all through the dinner. Whenever a servant was about to serve a dish to a lady he remarked: "I must insist that I be served first, Mrs.

"Would your Majesty prefer to drink your wine out of a slipper?" was another pointed question.

The climas came toward the close of the dinner, when the excellent Hungarian band that was in attendance was instructed to play the Russian national anther Save the Czar" or "Boye Tsarya Kranie." All the company, men and women, at Mrs. Fish's request, rose to their feet as a mark of respect while Mr. Lehr continued to sit in his chair, listening majestically to the stirring music that was being played in his hoper.

It happened that Senator Chauncey M. Depew was the nominal guest of honor at the feast, but he and everybody else understood that Mr. Lehr was the real Senator Depew made a short and amusing speech. I believe he did not relish the situation, but he was compelled to obey Mrs. Pish's wishes. Altogether the guests had a very enjoyable and hilarious time, though some of them were afraid of the subsequent social effects of Mrs. Fish's daring.

Thus Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish had her din ner with the Czar as a guest of honor, while Mrs. Ogden Goelet had hers with only the Grand Duke Boris. The other guests to each affair represented pretty closely the division which has been created in society owing to this Prince's visit. It must be remembered that trouble had already been caused by the affair of Mrs. Gambrill's dinner, which the Grand Duke left because he was not served before his hostens. Mr. Harry Lehr was referring to the affair when he made his deliciously humorous remarks about the soup. The Grand Duke has intimated that he expects to be treated here with the grovel-ing humility which is naturally given to the imperial family in autocratic Russia. During his visit to this country he has con-descended to drink wine out of a chorus girl's slipper, to consort with all sorts of siums of our great cities, but when he dines at a highly respectable woman's house she must not be served with a particle of food until he has been served.

The Duke led the way to the dinner table with Mrs. Gambrill on his arm. They sat down and the little neck clams, which were already on the table, were disposed of, and a few glasses of sauterne drunk. Then the awful catastrophe happened which broke up the dinner

The butler served soup to Mrs. Gambrill having served the Grand Duke. the Roumanian Jews Moreover, it may be said that no answer is expected from any of the foreign Fowers on this matter, other than the usual formal statements from the United States Ambassadors and Ministers abroad that they have complied with the department's instruction to read the notes to the various foreign Ministers, who have returned acknowledgments for the same and promises of its consideration.

The reason for this expectation lies in the fact that the department's functions touching the Jewish question terminated, or, at least, were indirectly suspended, upon the presentation of its note. Having called the attention of the signatury Powers to the infractions by Roumania of the treaty of Berlin, it remains for the Powers to decide what shall be done, if, indeed anything is done.

Consequently, whatever correspondences

Consequently, whatever correspondence follows on this subject of the treatment of the Roumanian Jews probably will be exchanged directly between the Powers, and in it the United States will have no part.
